

Pledge of Allegiance

I the undersigned, do hereby pledge to support the Suffrageur Society (pledge below), in every way possible. I believe that men need extra help, until a balance of power between the sexes has been re-established and men can once again speak for themselves. At every opportunity I will:

- promote the idea of the Suffrageur Society
- encourage married men to join and members to exalt
- frequently repeat that feminism has gone too far
- respect male symbols, institutions, strengths and virtues
- agree that men and women are equal value as human beings, but that in most things one or the other excels
- point out that women need controlling by men, just as men need controlling by women

I submit my reasons for joining the Society, to be kept on record and available for public scrutiny, together with my name and address. I will display this pledge in my home, and hope that my action as a founding member will inspire others to follow suit.

I understand the Society exists solely as a public registry of people committed to the above principles, and as a repository for their reasons for joining. The society will close to new members, when a balance has been re-established.

Signed: _____ Dated: _____

The Suffrageur Supporters Society

Registered Pledge Number:

100015

Date:

10/10/2018

Name:

Duncan Butlin

51 Bradshaw Road
Swanfield Park
Chichester
West Sussex
PO19 6TN
United Kingdom

Keeper of the Register: Duncan M. Butlin

*Sexism
not Religion
nor Atheism*

Pledge of Allegiance

I the undersigned, a married man, do hereby pledge to fight women to gain power over them until a balance is achieved, both in public and in private life, such that men once again can think and speak for themselves. I will then continue to fight this sex war to maintain that balance, for as long as I shall live. To establish truth, at every opportunity (yet with the utmost civility) I will:

- deny equality and equality of opportunity between the sexes
- champion male symbols, institutions, strengths and virtues
- often say something sexist (but true) about womankind
- assert authority in my home to control my wife and children
- discipline misbehaving women and women's organisations
- judge when women lie, and punish them until they apologise
- discipline bad behaviour rather than be kind (e.g. single mothers)

To build trust, I will also at the same time:

- talk truthfully to strangers, especially ladies, to discover truth
- respect female symbols, institutions, strengths and virtues
- acknowledge our equal value as human beings, once a day
- interfere and risk death to help maintain public order
- cherish and protect my family and the local community
- treat all well-behaved ladies with gallantry and chivalry

I submit my reasons for joining the Society, to be kept on record and available for public scrutiny, together with my name and address. As a founding member of the Society I hope my action will inspire others to follow suit.

I will display this pledge prominently in my home, whether or not my wife agrees, and protect it from harm until I die -- for handing down to my children.

I understand the Society has no other purpose than to act as a public registry of married men committed to the above principles of behaviour, and as a repository for their reasons for joining.

Signed: _____ Dated: _____

The Suffrageur Society

“Suffer woman once to be your equal and from that day forth she will be your master”

Cato the Elder, c. 213 bc

Monument to the Triumph of Male Virtue
over Female Sin

Registered Pledge Number:

Dated:

Suffrageur:

Keeper of the Register:
Duncan M. Butlin

*Sexism
not Religion
nor Atheism*